"HAS COME TO STAY."

Gov. Hill's Opinion of the Electrical System merely saying that the executions had taken tered. place successfully and I know nothing more about them than what I have learned from the new papers."

Many of the witnesses who witnessed the executions were in New York city last night and reporters called on them for information regarding the executions, but, as they are bound to secrecy, they were very reticent. Some interesting facts and opinions were elicited, how-ever. Dr. Rockwell characterized electric ever. Dr. Rockwell characterized electric death as being far more humane than hanging and said that in none of the hangings he had witnessed did the men suffer as little as the murderers who sat in the death chair yesterday. All four died instantly and painlessly only exhibiting the gathering rigidity which marked the work of the current. Dr. Rockwell denies that any burning was apparent. He said all of the condemned men were docile, submitting without demonstration to their death

TWO SHOCKS NECESSARY. Dr. Daniels said that but for his promise not to talk he could tell a startling tale. He admitted that as in Kemmler's case it was necessary to shock the victims twice. He said the doctors shock the victims twice. He said the doctors carried away portions of the victims' bodies for examination.

One physician, whose name may not be men tioned, said he never saw anything so neatly done. It reminded him of a little family party as they sat in the room there.

Dr. Cortelyou said he attended the test in the interest of science, and his mind was made up if he found any cruelty in the infliction of before the proper state authorities and seek to have the law repealed. Death in every instance was absolutely painless and instantaneous, he believed. Two shocks were administered simply as a matter of precaution.

Dr. R. H. Southwick said that the experiexecutions at Sing Sing prison arrived home last night. They were Drs. McDonald, Samuel B. Ward and Franklin Townsend, jr. Dr. McDonald, in referring to the executions, said: "The four men were executed without a hitch, any report to the contrary notwithstanding. There was no confusion nor struggling on the part of either of the condemned, and each suffered an instant and painless death. The arrangements were perfect, as was evidenced by the results, which in themselves demonstrated the utility and humane method involved in killing by electricity. All present were thoroughly satisfied with the results. I do not know exactly how soon I shall prepare my official report on the executions."

"What did you find as the result of the an-Dr. McDonald, in referring to the topsies?"

"I shall have nothing to say on this subject until after the publication of my official report."

Dr. Ward, who was present, said: "I reiterate what Dr. McDonald has said regarding the execution. Now, if never before, I am thoroughly convinced that an execution by elec-

REPUBLICS FOR THE WORLD. The Purposes of a Meeting to Be Held in

The resolution introduced into the Philadelphia common council at its last meeting allowing the committee of the pan-republic congress permission to surround themselves with liberty's historical environs and make use of Independence Hall for their meeting has borne to make Philadelphia the center of what may be one of the most powerful organizations of the time and calculated to inspire its followers with the truest regard for the system of governing countries by the methods used in the

The pan-republic congress, while not allied to the pan-American congress, is identified with it in principle, but upon a broader scale. So effectually have the members of the congress been forming their plan that they have almost completed the same, and a program is al-

The objects of the pan-republic congress was are to interest the people of all nations in the principles of republican government. There | S will be representatives from all the foreign countries and the South American nations as well. Already President Harrison and Secre-tary Blaine are deeply interested in its success, and powerful influences will be brought to bear to make its purposes to the advantage of all countries that may become interested in the movement.

The committee's visit to Washington was a most encouraging one. The President for-mally received them and said carnestly that he hoped the pan-republic congress would successfully carry out the views of its organization. The Secretary off State warmly commended the good which he said the congress must effect, and suggested to its organizers the cooperation of Mr. Curtis, the secretary of the pan-American congress. Mr. Blaine's suggestion was carried into effect and he has already rendered valuable service to the promoters of the new congress.

This congress appeals to the broadest and deepest human interests and it is, by the nature of its origin, exempt from any selfish or partisan element. Gov. Pattison and Mayor Stuart have signified their willingness to welcome the delegates to the meeting in October.

TO APPEAL TO PRESIDENT HARRISON.

Tribune, dated yesterday, says: Nanpie, chief of Ponape, Caroline Islands, arrived here on the steamer Australia today from Honoluiu. He comes to appeal to President Harrison in behalf of his people, who are threatened with the ruin of their property by the Spanish soldiery. He is a man of magnificent physique, good features and manly bearing and speaks good English. He says his people endured the brutality of the Spanish as long as they were able. The soldiers sent to Ponape are not Spanish, but Lascars, from Manifa—dirty, ignorant and sensual. The Spanish soldiers world-wide movement for liberty under law. The program for the meetings is outlined as follows:

Monday, October 12, morning meeting in Independence Hall, to which the public are invited. Addresses of welcome by the governor and the mayor. The responses will probably be made by Rey, Edward Everett Hall and the ruin of their property by the Spanish solbe made by Rev. Edward Everett Hall and Archbishop Ireland.

In the afternoon there will be a business meeting of the committee on organization.

In the evening there will be another public meeting and addresses by representative Americans of the State.

Tuesday morning and afternoon there will be business and public meetings.

In the evening a final public meeting, at which there will be addresses from delegates of the great patriotic societies and those in sympathy with free institutions; also from foreign members of the committee.

The American consul, Mr. Rand, is in Honolulu and expects to return to Ponape on the missionary steamer Morning Star, which brought Chief Nanpie and several American missionaries to Honolulu. Rand has waited nearly six months for this steamer. It is understood that he has sent strong letters to Washington, urging the government to dispatch a man-of-war to Ponape to protect the property of Americans, and to insist upon fair dealing by the Spaniards toward the natives.

MR. HARRINGTON'S HORSE, The Accident to It Not Due to Any Careles

ness on the Part of the Railroad To the Editor of The Evening Star: It is to be regretted that your Georgetown correspondent of yesterday evening suffered himself to be misled into an exhibition of unfairness in the following item: "Owing to the absence of a headlight last night on the overcrowded Tenleytown electric car, No. 8, the brakeman was unable to see whether the track in front of him was clear or not and near Tenleytown a horse belonging to Mr. Harrington, the milkman, was run into, thrown under the car and severely cut. The passengers were delayed ten or fifteen minutes by the accident and many remarks, not at all complimentary, were made about the managers of the road, who would permit a car, on a dark night, to leave their house without being provided with such a necessity as a head-light. No one attached any blame to the brakeman. There are some points on this road which are made so dark by overhanging trees that it is impossible to see ten feet in front of the car."

Now, the truth is, that Mr. Harrington's horse was untied, unharnessed and unattended, in fact astray on the street contrary to law. He was not only astray on the street, but was obstinately obstructing the railway track (on a excitement fannie became hysterical and her condition became so serious that she required the services of a physician.

A STORY OF BIGAMY.

How a Pennsylvania Man Duped a Beautifu Southern Girl-His Arrest.

A special dispatch from Scranton to the Philadelphia Press tells of the arrest of Lawrence Hedglin of Dunmore on a charge of bigamy and the following interesting story, the beginning of which dates back nearly twelve years. Hedglin was then twenty-ix years of age and lived in Dunmore. He had been married four years before that time. His wife was compelled to leave him on account of his cruelty to herself and their children. They remained in Dunmore with her relatives, while Hedglin went to New Orleans, where he secured work on the levees. During his stay there he met and courted a pretty southern girl fifteen years of age. She was compara-tively rich, being an orphan and heir to valuable real estate in Mississippi. There were also several thousand dollars in cash awaiting her when she became of age. Hedglin repre-sented himself to be unmarried, and led the in-nocent girl to believe he was the descendant of an old and respected family in the north. Much against the will of her guardian the girl

The ceremony was performed in New Orleans, where they lived together for several years. About two years ago the bold rascal came back to Dunmore, bringing with him his southern bride. He began housekeeping with his parents, who knew of their son's crime, yet harbored bins and his deladed with first parents. his parents, who knew of their son's crime, yet harbored him and his deluded wife for over eighteen months without warning the child wife of her husband's perfidy. Hedglin's first wife, who was still living ir Dunmore, upon learning of her husband's action, instead of disclosing the true state of affairs to the wronged girl, imitated Hedglin by getting marwronged girl, imitated Hedglin by getting mar-ried herself. About one year ago a second child was born to Mrs. Hedglin No. 2, and she decided to purchase a cradle for the little babe, but before expending any money for such an article she thought to look about the house, hoping to find an old crib that might have been used by her mother-in-law. Her researches were rewarded by finding a cradle, but not one of the kind she looked for. Instead it was a patent rocker of a desire that cradle, but not one of the kind she looked for.

Instead it was a patent rocker of a design that was not in vogue in the time of her husband's infancy. This set her to thinking. If her mother-in-law had not purchased the cradle, who had? The logical conclusion was that some one of a generation younger than her father-inlaw had rocked their children in the newfangled crib. The terrible truth dawned upon her. Her husband had been married before.
It was not until months afterward that she her. Her husband had been married before. It was not until months afterward that she learned how she had been duped. She went among the neighbors where the Hedglins had formerly lived, and the impression she had formed was fully confirmed by the stories she heard. Broken-hearted, she fled from the place after taking an affectionate farewell of her two little children. She found employment with a respectable family in Wilkesbarre as a servant, hoping to earn enough money to take her back respectable lamily in whikesbarre as a servant, hoping to earn enough money to take her back to Louisiana. A day or two ago she decided to go to Dunmore to see her children. She was talking to the children when Hedglin appeared. He assaulted her and drove her from the house, threatening to take her life if she returned. After so foully deceiving her, then to maitreat went to Alderman Delong's court and told he quiring that hereafter all vouchers from the various charitable institutions be sent to the superintendent of charities for review before alderman administered a scathing lecture and sent him to jail to await trial on the charges of breaking the peace, descrition and bigamy. All that Hedglin could say in defense of his unenviable position was that he was no more of a bigamist than his first wife. The grossiy injured prosecutrix stated at the trial that in addition to other despicable tricks Hedglin had written to her guardian in New Orleans stating that she was dead and asking that her money be sent to him, as he was her husband and guardian of her children. The New Orleans party answered that he would only be too glad to send along the money if he (Hedglin) would forward a certificate of the woman's death and sufficient proof of his having been appointed guardian of the children. As Hedglin could not do this the matter was dropped.
